Traffic-source comparison used to support the February platform-distribution adjustment.

During the month, a strategic adjustment in social media distribution was tested, shifting from approximately 70% Instagram / 30% Facebook to 60% Instagram / 40% Facebook. Facebook is currently generating more paid traffic to the website, while Instagram remains the stronger platform for organic discovery and organic traffic.
For this reason, investment and content distribution were slightly increased on Facebook, allowing paid traffic strategy to be better supported while continuing to leverage Instagram's organic reach.

Overall, the ecosystem, social media, paid media, and website optimization, continues to mature, generating consistent growth in visibility, traffic, and bookings.

Avg. CPC (€) (Global)	0.06	0.06	0.06	0.08	0.08	0.05	0.07
CTR (%) (Global)	2.74%	2.67%	2.75%	2.64%	2.46%	2.70%	2.73%

Overall performance indicators remained healthy and stable. The CTR slightly improved to 2.73% (vs 2.70% in January), indicating that ads continued to generate strong engagement, while CPC remained low at €0.07, still within a very efficient range.

The number of tracked website purchases remained similar to the previous month (29 vs 28). However, it is important to note that a significant portion of the conversion-focused investment cannot be directly tracked, meaning the real impact on reservations and revenue is higher than the number shown in the platform.

Overall, Meta Ads continue to efficiently support traffic generation and bookings, while maintaining strong cost efficiency.
