Website traffic improved during the reporting period, with total sessions rising to 8,389 (+6.3%) and unique visitors to 6,691 (+15.5%) versus February. The strongest quality signal was session duration, which increased to 3m16s (+43.1%), showing stronger user engagement.

However, reservations and sales softened compared to February's peak. One likely factor was the reduced availability of fresh people-focused conversion creatives during this period. As a result, content and campaigns leaned more toward visual, visibility-driven formats rather than new booking-oriented creative variations.

Even so, performance remained above last year's levels, with 145 reservations (+16.0% YoY) and €5,028 in sales (+18.8% YoY), confirming that the website continued to perform at a strong level overall.

TikTok remained relevant as an awareness channel, with post views increasing to 118,000 and likes rising to 3,248 while paid investment remained stable at €80.

The variation in TikTok results during the reporting period is likely linked to a change in the type of content produced during the month.

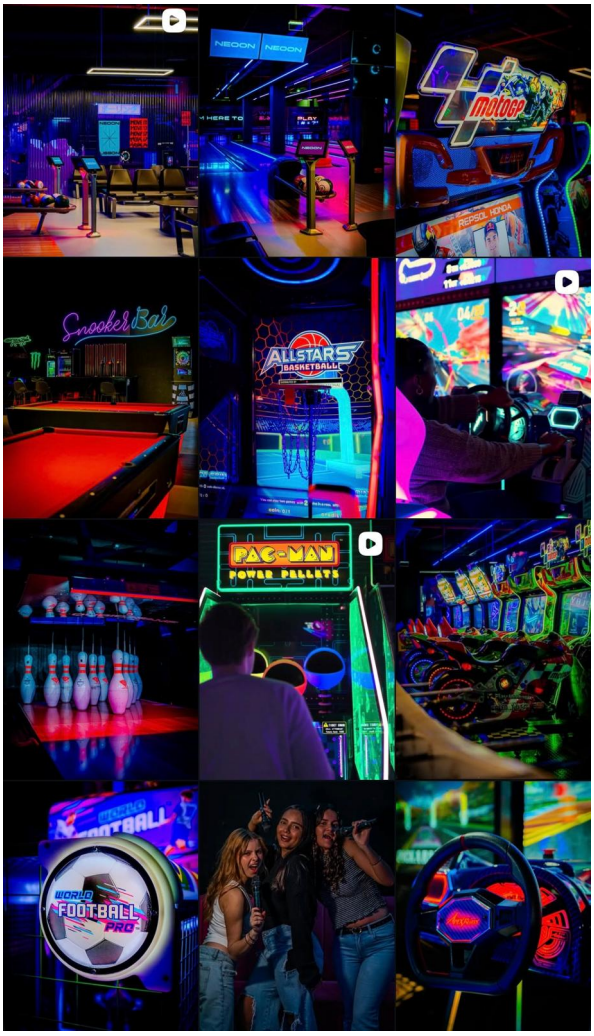

Unlike previous periods, March did not include the same level of people-focused content, as the person previously featured was no longer available and no replacement was in place during that time. As a result, the content became more visual and atmosphere-focused, and less oriented toward conversion or interaction-driven formats.

This helps explain why visibility remained strong, while shares and profile visits declined, as those metrics tend to respond better to more human, dynamic, and socially engaging content.

Overall Summary

The reporting period delivered another strong digital performance, with improved traffic quality and sustained visibility across channels.

Website sessions increased to 10,486, while average session duration reached 3m16s (+43.1%), showing stronger user engagement. Although reservations and sales softened compared to February's peak, results remained solid and above last year's levels, with 145 reservations (+16.0% YoY) and €5,028 in website sales (+18.8% YoY).

Overall, the reporting period confirms that Neoon continues to grow through a stable digital strategy that combines visibility, qualified traffic, and commercial impact.

Next Steps

- Produce new conversion-oriented creatives, especially for karaoke, to refresh the current booking-focused approach and improve conversion performance.
- Promote the new Neoon loyalty cards to encourage repeat visits and strengthen retention.
- Continue optimizing Meta Ads campaigns to maintain efficient traffic generation and support bookings.
- Give greater emphasis in content and campaigns to the fact that one of Neoon's core strengths is combining multiple entertainment experiences within a single space, reinforcing the venue as a complete entertainment destination.
